

AMA Journal of Ethics* Editorial Fellows

Eligibility

We invite medical/osteopathic students and trainees in US-based programs that are LCME- or COCA-accredited (for undergraduate schools) or ACGME- or AOA-accredited (for graduate training) to apply to work as AMA Journal of Ethics Fellows to generate monthly issues.

Medical students, resident physicians, and fellows may submit an application by themselves or with one other person who is a US-based student or trainee in a health professions, graduate, or professional degree program relevant to health care ethics and policy.

Once selected, Editorial Fellows will meet in Chicago in February for a 2-day workshop with the AMA Journal of Ethics editorial staff. Each Fellow receives a $3,000 stipend (or split in a 2-person application) for executing the following duties:

1. Work with editorial staff to synthesize one issue of the journal.
2. Generate case narratives and questions to help readers examine ethical, clinical, social, cultural, historical, and educational features of selected content.
3. Solicit contributors to the issue and prospective peer reviewers of manuscripts.